Est. 1841 | YORK ST JOHN UNIVERSITY

Walker, Nathan (2017) Ridge. Alterity, 1. pp. 71-77.

Downloaded from: https://ray.yorksj.ac.uk/id/eprint/2363/

The version presented here may differ from the published version or version of record. If you intend to cite from the work you are advised to consult the publisher's version: https://corbelstone.files.wordpress.com/2017/07/alterity-1-digital.pdf

Research at York St John (RaY) is an institutional repository. It supports the principles of open access by making the research outputs of the University available in digital form. Copyright of the items stored in RaY reside with the authors and/or other copyright owners. Users may access full text items free of charge, and may download a copy for private study or non-commercial research. For further reuse terms, see licence terms governing individual outputs. Institutional Repositories Policy Statement

RaY

Research at the University of York St John

For more information please contact RaY at ray@yorksj.ac.uk

ALTERITY

ONE

BEING DRAWN

NATHAN WALKER

Ridge

fullness with bell

inviting the towns — dug daubed
soon body
lead completer

ridge
of small harmers
dissolution
steepness
names
plead relation
exhausted;
hang the skein
copyhold
Winter
peak
imitate

no force
fissures
boardssleet

frontal
to do so Savagepew
Our

insertion of an arm

region task

grit
art of descent
died very hard Northern
guage A fe ways be a
fells

fues

cloth imagrina
listening

parasol
rooms

flat
salt

grassers

throw neck light

yis

When the mountain range speaks it is through the language of navigation. In the literature of walking, the descriptions of routes and the stories of discovery and height we find always a body attempting to move across, through, and over. In order to read these texts we must do the same. In order to hear the landscape we must navigate a linguistic terrain.